We live in ARUBA, a very sunny island in The Caribbean. Solar solutions are perfect for here. There are many ways to use the sun for your solutions. I use this mainly for generating electricity, but at the same time as a Dark/Light switch as well. Electronics, small mechanics, small construction is what I like.

The Future of Solar Power in the Philippines. The demand for solar power is expected to grow significantly in the coming years as more Filipinos become aware of its financial and environmental benefits. With the government's continued push for renewable energy adoption, the future of solar energy in the Philippines looks bright. Final Thoughts

Over a decade ago, Aruba moved toward renewable energy by allowing homes and businesses to install solar panels and connect them to the national grid. Elmar, the island's utility company, placed a cap--10 kW for residential and 100 kW for commercial installations--to manage growth without overloading the grid.
